NEW YEAR THOUGHTS
THE GOSPEL COALITION

Throughout the centuries, pastors and theologians have used the opportunity of the new year to encourage believers. Let’s listen to their advice for the year ahead. 1. Make the Bible your steady ground. The approach of another year stirs up within me new desires for your salvation, and for the growth of those of you who are saved. Those believers will stand firmest who have no dependence upon self or upon creatures, but upon Jehovah our Righteousness. We must be driven more to our Bibles, and to the mercy-seat, if we are to stand in the evil day. Spurgeon said something similar to his congregation on New Year’s Day 1860: “I wish, my brothers and sisters, that during this year you may live nearer to Christ than you have ever done before.” How can you prioritize Scripture this year? And, especially if you’re a pastor or church leader, how can you help others do this? 2. Pray to the God who supplies all your needs. But there’s good news too: “Here is the mercy, ‘My God shall supply all your need.’” We can pray confidently because we know the promises of the God we pray to. Echoing the apostle Paul’s admonition to “pray without ceasing” (1 Thess. 5:17), Spurgeon wrote, “The motto for this year must be, ‘Continue in prayer.’” 3. Get ready for Christ’s return. What are you working toward this year? Scribbled in your calendar may be a huge work project, a marathon, a milestone birthday, or a cross-country move. The 19th-century bishop J. C. Ryle didn’t have any of those goals in mind when he said in a sermon, “I ask you a plain question at the beginning of a New Year. Are you ready?” Two of the possibilities he was thinking of were our death and Christ’s return. We ought to live with the constant knowledge that Christ is coming back soon (Rev. 22:20).
